- The successful candidate is expected to attract third-party funding.
- Close cooperation with other areas of research and teaching at the Department of English (Applied Language Studies, Cultural Studies, and Literary Studies), as well as with the Department of American Studies and the faculty's and university's interdisciplinary research networks and research centres is expected.
- In teaching, the successful candidate is expected to cover the subject area of English linguistics in its entirety and on all levels of qualification, including the following curricula: Bachelor Anglistik/Amerikanistik, Master Anglistik/Amerikanistik, Teacher Training (BA and MA) as well as Doctoral Studies. These responsibilities include supervising bachelor theses, master theses, and doctoral theses.
- Other basic duties include academic administration and self-governance as well as the support of early-career scholars.

Essential requirements

- a) pertinent PhD degree acquired in Austria or abroad;
- b) pertinent habilitation or comparable qualification (e.g. additional monograph in the field);
- c) research in both synchronic and diachronic English linguistics, with one research area in the field of pragmatics and one in varieties of English. This research should be documented by relevant publications with internationally renowned publishers and contributions to international peer-reviewed journals as well as, if applicable, by research and teaching projects;
- d) excellent knowledge of English (level C2); good knowledge of German (at least B2; willingness to acquire level C1 in German within five years);

- e) international research profile, documented by visible networking in international research associations and internationally recognised research activities;
- f) experience in acquiring and managing third-party funding;
- g) excellent didactic skills and experience in different teaching formats as well as in teaching on different degree levels;
- h) experience in the supervision of final theses (e.g. BA theses, MA theses, PhD theses);
- i) excellent social and leadership skills as well as the willingness to participate in academic administration and self-governance;
- j) experience in research and/or teaching in Anglophone contexts.

Desirable Requirements

- a) additional documented research interest in lexicology and text linguistics;
- b) competence in corpus-linguistic methods;
- c) experience in interdisciplinary research;
- d) innovative didactic approaches;
- e) willingness to participate in ongoing research activities at the University of Innsbruck;
- f) willingness to establish international cooperations and to organize international symposia, workshops and conferences.
